L'Auberge Carmel Redux

Set within the picturesque village of Carmel, Calif., splendid L'Auberge Carmel was originally modeled after a building in Prague when first built in 1929 by seafaring adventurer Allen Knight. A recent remodel by famed interior designer Helga Horner brings fluid lines of the building's architecture inside the guest rooms. New four-poster canopied beds were specially made by a San Francisco artisan drawing from an early American design. "Each room is unique, so each captures a small vignette in what we imagine would have been Mr. Knight's style," says Maître de Maison Ramon Serrano. Original antiques, maps of antiquity and a cohesion of elements and styles have been ingeniously combined to update this Relais & Châteaux favorite.

Gilded Redesign at The Point

In upstate N.Y. are the mighty Adirondacks and the "Great Camps" built by Gilded Age tycoons amid resplendent nature. The greatest of these belonged to the magnate William Avery Rockefeller. The Relais & Châteaux getaway known as The Point has recently undergone a multi-million-dollar renovation, giving a luxurious upgrade to the soothing rustic architecture and natural materials of the famed 11-room estate. Each has been renovated, along with gorgeous common spaces including the Great Hall and The Boathouse, which has been winterized for year-round use. "This refurbishment is designed to elevate the experience to a new level of luxury for our loyal patrons while hopefully introducing new visitors to an exceptional stay," says Cameron Karger, General Manager.
