

Dear Friends,

Spring has arrived. It is a time of renewal when we can believe that while there may be more challenges ahead there is also sunlight through the clouds. Our thoughts remain with you and your families, near and far.

The global impact of the COVID-19 virus leaves us all in uncharted waters. We do not know how this situation will continue to unfold, how long it will last or what decisions it will ask each one of us to make based on what is best for our families and communities. We do know that when the time is right, The Point will be here to welcome you back (or, for the first time) to this unique setting that provides much of what we all need: peace and privacy, serenity and security, health and happiness in a way that the natural world offers.

As a former Great Camp situated deep in the dense forests of the Adirondacks, The Point provided the Rockefeller family and their guests a remote and healthy private retreat from the overcrowded and polluted cities during the Gilded Age. Our location in the heart of the Adirondacks, rich in natural beauty, on the shores of Upper Saranac Lake has always felt like a remote sanctuary and even more so in this difficult time we now face. We want to assure you that the team at The Point is ready to greet you once you are ready to travel again.

While the Point is currently closed for its regular, annual Spring closure, when we further enhance our historic buildings and picturesque grounds, we intend to reopen soon. Of course, we will continue to monitor developments related to the Coronavirus and adjust as appropriate. The safety and health of our guests as well as our dedicated team will always be our highest priority.

A season of rustic relaxation and luxury, fine dining, and healing in nature, amid towering fir trees, crisp and fresh pine-scented air and sparkling, endless lakes awaits you. We are enormously grateful for your support and friendship over the past years and we wish you and your families the very best.

Be safe and be healthy,

The Point Team
