MARCH 31, 2023 | BY BECCA HENSLEY | ST. CHARLES AVENUE APRIL 2023

A glamorous tented camp in northern Thailand set on a rescued elephant sanctuary. Marlon Brando's own island in Tahiti. A former summer hideaway for the Rockefeller family poised on a lake in upstate New York. A chic eco-hotel in Peru set amid the high-altitude Sacred Valley. A cliff hung romantic retreat in Big Sur, shaded by ancient redwoods. A safari lodge in Kenya where Out of Africa was filmed. A ranch in Montana with contemporary treehouse suites beneath the big sky.

What could possibly connect these alluring upscale destinations? Are you sitting down? Each one offers all-inclusive pricing, freeing you from worrying about pesky details during your stay, proffering tons of complimentary things to do, promising first-class food and drink and guaranteeing five-star service, shelter and amenities. While all-inclusives at this tier can't be called inexpensive, travelers will experience abundance and pampering and will return home sated, refreshed and bursting with treasured memories. Ready to go? Here are 12 of our favorites.

The Point, New York

Truffled popcorn or hot, just baked chocolate chip cookies at midnight? Happy Hour on a jaunty boat cruise in summer? Champagne bars hidden in corners, closets—even atop an icy lake? Tuxedos at night worn in rooms where the Rockefeller family dined with their friends the Astors and Vanderbilts in similar attire? That's the vibe at The Point, North America's first Relais and Châteaux hotel. Positioned lakefront on mirror-like Upper Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks, this summer home of the Rockefeller clan was built as a Great Camp. With a quixotic log mansion and 11 distinct guest rooms knitted into four original buildings, including a boathouse, The Point specializes in conjuring and replicating that 19th-century sensibility of "roughing it" with the helpful padding of unfettered opulence. Make like a Jazz Age reveler and enjoy combating the outdoors with ice skates or hiking boots in season, but always with a drink in your hand.
