The Point Resort The Point Resort

In the late 19th century, America's industrial tycoons escaped city life by retreating to the Adirondacks for New York vacations, where they lived in extravagant estates called Great Camps. One of these spectacular locations is The Point. Built by the Rockefellers during the Great Camp heyday, today it's one of the most romantic all-inclusive U.S. resorts for couples, decorated with prestigious art and antiques and home to 11 guest rooms with one-of-a-kind furnishings for an aristocratic immersion.

At The Point, you can spend the day together as a couple boating on Upper Saranac Lake, playing croquet on the lawn, or (in the winter months) cross-country skiing. Limited Wi-Fi means the outside world won't interfere. Dinner is a high society affair that preserves Gilded Age tradition.
